but unlike Miller and Valasek, the academics have kept the details of their work a closely guarded secret, refusing even to identify the make of the car they hacked.

One way to get round the side effects is to give a much lower dose of progesterone.